Things to remember

- Valid passport
- Valid visa
- Completed customs form
- Detailed packing list in English
- Deregister from the Dutch municipality

There are also a number of strictly prohibited items you cannot take to New Zealand:

- Ivory and ivory products (even the keys of your piano may be made of ivory)
- Drugs
- All apiculture equipment (beekeeping)
- Living and stuffed animals

For all your questions about your international move you can contact your personal Move Manager. As committed specialists, we supervise your move to New Zealand and take care of every detail. That's what we call: 'Guiding your way Home'.

Quarantine inspection

No matter how large or small your shipment to New Zealand is, from a single box to a whole container, all goods are put into quarantine as a biosecurity measure; as an island, New Zealand protects its flora and fauna. A customs officer inspects all the goods and decides whether treatment such as gamma irradiation or fumigation is needed to kill any organic traces. This check takes between ten and fourteen working days. Any costs for fumigation or gamma irradiation are paid by the owner of the goods.

Please take this into account before packing your items. Always check bikes and shoes for traces of sand and mud, and wood for holes which may contain insects. The list on the previous page contains other common items you should pay attention to. If you have any questions please do not hesitate to contact your personal Move Manager.
